Milk Producers Hear Indiana F. B. Leader

A crowded house of Kentuckians milk producers heard H. E. Schenck, president of the Indiana Farm Bureau, as guest speaker at the eighteenth annual meeting of the Falls Cities Cooperative Milk Producers Association, at the Brown Hotel Monday. The speaker told his farm audience that farm prices were going to drop sooner or later and advised them to strengthen their organization and stick to their cooperatives.

Schenck commended the Falls Cities Cooperative and told them to "keep up the good work." He pointed out that farm prices during the depression were as much as 20 percent below the cost of production, but now farmers are getting good prices along with other producers of commodities.

At the afternoon session, five directors were elected to represent the membership throughout the milk shed. President Ben A. Turner asked for an expression of the producer-members present concerning a proposed increase in the checkoff taken by the Association from 46 per hundred pounds to be per hundred for nine months during the year. Some spoke for and some against the increase. Finally, it was decided by popular vote to leave the matter for the board of directors to consider. As manager of the Association, Richard L. Duncan gave a report of the past year's operating expenses.

COLLEGE PREPARES FARM-LEASE FORM

A lease form to serve as a guide for landlords and tenants in drawing up farming arrangements has been prepared by the Farm Economics Department of the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture and Home Economics.

However, the lease can be adjusted to fit nearly all farm-lease requirements in Kentucky."

Copy of "The Farm Lease" can be had at offices of county agents or by writing to the college at Lexington.

THE OHIO DEERE POTATO PLANTER

This year get your potato seed into the ground on schedule. Plant accurately... at four miles per hour... with a dependable John Deere Potato Planter—the planter with the 12-row picker wheel. You'll not only plant accurately but plant at a uniform depth... in evenly-spaced rows... with fertilizer accurately-placed to increase your crop yields.

Check over these outstanding features:

Speed.... the improved planting mechanism, with 12 picker arms, reduces the rotating speed of the picker drum by at least 30 percent. This results in greater accuracy and a faster tractor speeds modern growers want to use.

Accuracy.... is also increased by separating the 12-pickers into two rows of 6, allowing more space around each picker arm to permit the seed to seat itself properly for picking.

Uniform Placement: picker arms place the seed at desired spacing in rows with greater precision than human hand. Staple-type picker points assure positive but gentle picking action; adjustable for any size seed.

Proper Fertilization: fertilizer placement is of the approved, band-type method with easy and accurate regulation of quantity and depth.

Careful Covering: covering disks available for shallow covering, hill-side planting or for throwing up high beds.

Simple, Sturdy Construction: one-piece, heavy-duty, all-steel channel frame construction; extra-strong wheels; and many other heavy-duty features make it the strongest planter on the market.

Large-Capacity All-Steel Hoppers.... hold four bushels. are lower than in other planters and, thus, more easily loaded.

Adjustable to all Requirements: adjustments are easily made for changing spacing sprockets; relocating the picker points to accommodate the various sizes of seed; and for moving units on the two-row axle for planting 22- to 42-inch rows.

Easy Operation: a single lever, with improved side trigger grip, controls seed placement, fertilization, covering, and the single clutch, which governs all.

Light Draft.... and perfect balance are obtained by the simplification and reduction of operating parts. Planter is easy to turn... easy to operate. See us for further details.

Monday, February 16, found me at Newburg. There were 30 boys and girls present. Time was spent in Arts and Crafts and style show practice. Was glad to see Mrs. Tinker and her children out.

On February 17 we were at Jeffersontown. There were 35 boys and girls present. Arts and Crafts, music and folk games were the activities.

The council met at Berrytown Monday, February 16. Election of officers at this meeting were as follows:

Mr. Nelson Goodwin, chairman; Mr. Wm. Helm, vice chairman;

What do you mean, Come the Revolution?

Brother, the revolution has been—the most radical revolution of all time!

It happened in 1776. That's right—1776. You think there's been a more radical revolution since? How could there be? Do you realize what that revolution of 1776 brought about?

Imagine—men, all men, having a say in the things they are governed. Not only able to let the guy at the top who they think about him, but able to do something about it.

Imagine—men, ordinary men like you and me, being able to say "I'll go to the police." "This is my home. This is my property. Please keep out—but now." Have you heard of anything more revolutionary since?

Imagine—men and women not having to worship in a certain way just because the fellows that run things happen to worship that way. Or not having to give up their way of worship because the gang in power happens not to like it.

Radical? Brother, how could any political party with the means of making their hands shake such a state of affairs? Let a little thing like law stand in the way of grabbing all the power and money and things they want? How?

Because of what the revolution of 1776 brought about. The rule of the ordinary man. Rule by people like you and me. Rule based on law; on decency and fair dealing; on honesty and justice. Rule by the majority with full respect for the rights of the minority. All minorities. Some people call it the golden rule.

When you stop to think about it, it is.

KENTUCKY REALLY ON THE MARCH

Kentucky is reported to be really "On The March," industrially, a number of towns having already located small but paying enterprises. Georgetown, Corbin, other towns are going out vigorously after new small concerns that fit their town, overall factories, hat and cap factories, shoe factories, and the like.

Mayfield got a big Pet Milk factory and a big clothing factory "just going into it," and offering industrializing a good wallpaper factory the same way—helping to finance, finding suitable location. New methods of financing are helping small cities and many new industries seek the small communities to get away from the high cost of real estate and taxes in the large cities. Branches of big nationally known industries are going to the smaller towns in many states. What has Jefferson-town to offer? Would it like to "get into the game"?

U. M. T. HAVING ROUGH SLEDDING

While there are two schools of thought—pro and con—United Military Training as offered by the Army, even with all of its advantages, is having "rough sledding" in Washington, it is reported. Despite the fact that the Truman administration has advocated, and Dewey of New York has agreed, Talt and others oppose, and the $5,000,000 cost, per year, is "at least an item" at this time of heavy expenditure for foreign-aid and domestic requirements.

Few think the bill will pass in its present form, considered as it is outright conscription in peacetime and the atom bomb has shown a new way in war. Then, oddly enough, the 17 or 18 year-olds, who will be called upon to "do the fighting" in the next war, have no vote and haven't even been consulted, it is pointed out. "Make it voluntary under the same new plan," one source suggests, "and the Army will be able to get all the young men he wants for a defense army."

Volunteer recruiting is getting along surprisingly well, it is reported, despite the "fear" expressed that this method will fill requirements. Louisville is said to have recruited 600 alone in January.

OLD TIME MINSTRELSY

Few, these days, get to see blackface acts like those of the oldtime minstrels, unless it is Louisville—just a short sketch or specialty. There are many, still living today, who saw some of America's leading minstrel troupes, such as Barlow, Wilson, Primrose and West in their prime.

Oddly enough, the earliest American minstrel was popular in New York, Boston, and London, England, in spite of the fact that it was generally believed, at first, that such shows, depicting the Southern Negro on the cotton plantations, were only "go big" in the South. George Wilson, one of the funniest men on the American minstrel stage, was an Englishman. Daniel Deatur Emmett, wrote the song of Dixieland in a Columbus, Ohio, hotel. He has been given credit as being the father of minstrelsy in this country as a member of the Virginia Minstrels.

In the early days there were seldom more than six persons in a minstrel show. "Bones" the clown and jester, Tambo, the tambourine shaker and beater, four instrumentalists, and singers. Col. "Jack" Haverly surpassed the number up to forty—two and special scenery and his own special train. Field, native of Ohio, is reputed to have made a fortune and incidentally helped to give such others as Eddie Cantor, Al Jolson a start in their later life. Lew Dockstader was born in Massachusetts, and Milt Barlow is said to have come from a Kentucky family. "Honey Boy" Evans was one of the most successful of minstrel comedians. All have been seen from time to time in Louisville.

Investigations of speculators in government employ, whom it is charged made money on the market because of having been given inside information, have brought out that one official left it all to his broker to buy and sell, and without his going near the place, cleared up $6,000. Now we are wanting to know the name and address of that broker. It happens that we are not in government employ and know nothing about trading on the market, and could hardly use $6,000.

It really looks like that if any good thing is to come out of Washington this year of political maneuvering, it will have to be accidental or in spite of legislative endeavors. The big game goes on, in many ways, on a field saturated with politics. Tax proposals particularly, it seems impossible to remove from political implications and influences. This political pastime of angling for votes is surely a great game.

There seems to be a lot of smoke rising over the county fire fighting forces and their official sponsors these days. If they are fighting equally as much fire, literally, they must get pretty busy.

So far, says a local Republican, Herbert Hoover hasn't been blamed for the present spell of inflation.

Mrs. and Mrs. Henry Kingberger, Mrs. Lulu Keiser, Mrs. and Mrs. Leroy Kaufman, all of the city, called Sunday evening on Mr. and Mrs. Rea and family at the Fiscal Court. In 1947 the Fiscal Court spent over $200,000 of taxpayer money and has not been able to reduce insurance rates one cent.

The volunteer departments in Kenton and Campbell Counties have reduced their insurance rates to sixth class, exactly the same as the residential districts of the City of Louisville. This reduction was obtained without any help from the Fiscal Courts of those Counties.

We might say that from our experience in Jefferson County, it was possible because the Fiscal Courts of those Counties did not interfere or attempt to harass the Volunteer organizations, although local volunteer departments have been able to secure insurance reduction rates in limited areas in spite of the County Fire Department.

According to the minutes of the Fiscal Court, Cloud Thompson was named as Chief of the County Fire Department and was instructed by the Fiscal Court to coordinate the activities of the volunteer companies in Jefferson County and to train and instruct the members of the County Fire Department.

OUR DEMOCRACY by Mrs. H. H. HARRIS

THE FIRST STEP

THE MOMENT WE SET DOWN WITH OUR SEED CATALOGS OUR GARDENS BEGIN TO GROW. WHILE IN OUR MINDS WE SEE PLANTS IN LUXURIOUS GROWTH, FRUIT HEAVY ON THE VINE—ACTUALLY WE ARE TAKING THE FIRST STEP IN MAKING A GARDEN.

Lesson for February 27, 1948

JOHN WESLEY said, "The world is my parish." Many another Christian has entertained this great concept, and that is precisely what Jesus wants us to understand concerning the sweep and scope of his Kingdom.

Sunday's lesson brings to us a beautiful picture of the mission of the church in the great words of Jesus. Just as Paul was summoned to preach the Gospel, so we are summoned to preach the Gospel to all lands. He loves every body.

Jesus loved the little children.
 All the children of the world, Jesus loves them.
 They are precious in his sight,
 Jesus loves the little children of men.

REACHING THE WORLD

JUST as Paul went from one land to another, so may every Christian boy and girl. Each church can reach out hands of blessing to all the world.

How? Through our gifts. Our gifts for missions, joined with the gifts of all the other churches of our local church, joined with the gifts of many other churches, go out in multiplied blessing through the missionaries to reach Christ known around the world.

How? Through our prayers. As we pray for the redemption of the world, we fortify the missionaries—teachers, doctors, nurses—in all the parts of the world.

How? Through our sympathy. Understanding of the conditions of the people who live in other lands. Just now we are giving clothes and food to help the stricken people. These gifts of material things bear their message of our Christian concern for the people who are extending the reach of our individual lives and the reach of our church to the ends of the earth.

PUBLISHING SALVATION

"I love beautiful upon the mountains the feet of him that bringeth glad tidings, that publisheth peace . . . that publisheth salvation." The world mission of the church is here pictured in the exquisite language of the ancient prophet, which words we may link the declaration of the great apostle, "For whenever you shall call upon the name of the Lord shall be saved." Romans 10:15.

Publishing salvation is the chief task of the church of the Lord Jesus Christ, and the objects of this universal mission are the souls of all men. There is universal need, and here is the adequate and available answer.

See how this conception of the world mission of the church brings into focus the one hope for civilization, the only voice that carries across the barriers of this troubled world is the voice of salvation through Jesus Christ. The world was bound in any spot on this earth, and some waiting heart.

THE UNSEARCHABLE RICHES

AND what we are to say about the message we have to publish! Paul puts it well in Ephesians 3:12, when he declares: "In Christ, who is the head of the church, the least of all the saints is this great thing, that I should preach among the Gentiles the unsearchable riches of Christ."

In another place we read about the "unsearchable riches of God." The message, then, is one of unsearchable riches, and unsearchable gifts.

In this message is healing for the peoples of the earth. If the true mission of the church is understood and served, and if the message of the Gospel may today be given to the world, we shall see the fulfillment of the promise of the prophets, and the angels about the throne of God will shout for joy.

As Paul changed his course in the long ago, heading the Macedonia band, let us today find ourselves turning about in our response to the Holy Spirit's voice, and let us not be afraid so long as we are sincerely seeking to publish glad tidings to all men.

U. N. Facts and Figures

Canada is 3,890,410 square miles in area and has a population of 11,568,000. Bridging the North American continent, Canada extends from the Atlantic Ocean to the Pacific and stretches northward from the traditionally unfurled United States border to the polar regions. Canada, a member of the British Commonwealth of Nations, produces agricultural products, valuable minerals and industrial products. A member of the United Nations Economic and Social Council and the Atomic Energy Commission, Canada has been represented in the General Assembly by Louis B. St. Laurent, Secretary of State for External Affairs. Her flag has a red field, a shield and a blue union jack with red and white crosses in upper corner.

Statistics and Facts

When I was a student, forty years ago or so, I heard almost daily that farm life was going to the dogs, that urban life was being built on the ruins of the country. I heard often schemes to induce people to "return to the soil," as the catch phrase had it. For some years I actually felt that the great calamity was about to happen, that we would starve to death. And now, what a difference!

All the time these old-timers were fearful of our future because customs were changing, a new agriculture, based on genuine learning and sound economics, was developing. Merely because the outward forms of it differed from what older people had known, many thought it slowly dying as a great challenge to humanity. But within a few years tangible evidence of better farming were everywhere about us. Old fields that were abandoned when I was a child have been redeemed by modern scientific farming and made to contribute their share to human welfare. The most fertile fields that I know did not at their best produce as much as many of the less favored ones do now. On a farm that would have constituted a single pasture thirty years ago now is produced enough for a good-sized family.

When I began to teach school, forty years ago, a high-school graduate out in the country away from genuine city life was unknown in Kentucky. My generation had to go away from home to secure the very elements of education. Think how many country children today have the advantages of as good high schools as exist in our land. If I were to find myself lamenting the lack of opportunities of school children in a small town that that of children in the open country accessible to a high school. The fact that so many people have secured a basic education four years beyond the grades as we used to know them does not in itself make educated people, but it forms a basis for a liberal education that college and life can and will bring.

It is surprising how much country life has improved its comforts and conveniences, even though it is still far from perfect. But what about the ragged edges of our towns, even those which, like mine, boast of their culture? Every time I drive out into the state, I am impressed with the R. E. A. lines, which in a very few years, years hampered by war conditions, have reached nearly every section of every county. Refrigeration alone is worth all the money that R. E. A. lines cost, in improving the safety and variety of foods eaten on the farm. Radio have penetrated just about every kind of area, even beyond the electric line. The remotest country man or woman or child knows what the world is saying and often knows enough about public affairs to enlighten you and me who live and have lived for many years in the city.

The thing that disgusts me often is that hosts of people of my age are still thinking only of the crude days that we spent in the country a half century ago. Having left the farm as young people, they may rapaciously about it and plan to return to it in their old age, but meanwhile they remain as far from farm life and the understanding of farm people as possible. As I have said many times in this column, the various farm organizations strike me as about the most alive groups now in existence. They are practical rather than theoretical. They get things accomplished and are able to see the achievements of each other at stated intervals. The farm population is smaller than it used to be but is certainly still adequate to its tasks. One of my oldest acquaintances, who has been a successful farmer longer than I have lived, told me recently that every day of his life he has needed to know the most abstruse secrets of chemistry to carry on his farm. He said that a farmer cannot get too good an education, that every day will offer use for the most abstract phrases of knowledge. And that from a man who has had little formal training but who has grown up with the farm as it has adapted itself to changes.

Hints For Women Who Sew At Home

Hints to home sewers, who during the slack season are making their cotton dresses for spring and summer, are suggested by Miss Verna Letzke, specialist in clothing at the UK College of Agriculture and Home Economics. Because the new look, obtained principally through longer and fuller skirts, will cost each wearer from one to several yards more material, Miss Letzke advises checking yardage requirements as given on the pattern envelope before the material is bought, else there might be a shortage when the garment is cut. The approved skirt length for spring continues to be mid-calf, she said.

A second safeguard is to buy cotton fabrics which have been sanforized, or are labeled not to result in more than one per cent residual shrinkage upon washing. Miss Letzke pointed out. When cottons have not been so treated, the home sewer is cautioned to shrink them before a garment is made. This may be done by first folding the material wrong side out with selvages even, then soaking it thoroughly in warm water and hanging carefully to avoid unnecessary wrinkling. When partially dry, it should be pressed on the wrong side, edges even. Done in this way, the original finish of the material will not be lost, the specialist said.

Seam finishes to be used on cotton dresses depend upon the weight and firmness of the fabric. The pinking shears may be used to give a finished edge on such firm fabrics as chambray, broadcloth and gingham. Where there is a strain on light-weight fabrics, Miss Letzke advises a plain seam with double rows of stitching a fourth-inch apart. An opened plain seam with each edge turned under and stitched is recommended where raveling is a problem.

LOOKING AHEAD

FALSE EARNINGS
Would a $500 per week increase in wages or salary interest you? If your income sky-rocketed like this, you wouldn't be much worried about the high cost of living, would you? Wait a minute. Are you sure you're on easy street? Perhaps you will be surprised to learn that workers in France have had that amount of increase in their money earnings since 1914, and they still lack the necessities of life.

A brick layer in Paris worked 48 hours a week in 1914. He took home 4 1/2 francs a week, slightly less than one franc per hour. But today he gets 35 francs per hour. In 1914 he could buy four quarts of milk for his franc or a dozen eggs for half a franc. Today for an hour's wages he can buy less than three quarts of milk and barely 7 eggs—if he can find them. Both items, plentiful in 1914, are now hard to obtain.

Hold Your Own?
This means that there are things more important than increases in wages. The consequences of inflation are such that costs of living manage to keep a step ahead of wage boosts. The lesson is this: the average breadwinner cannot hold his own in the inflation spiral gets going. No matter how often wages are increased, he gets further behind.

Costs always outrun increases in earnings—unless someone stops the spiral. To stop a runaway train, you have to do more than holler "Whoa!" You have to pull back on the reins, set your heels in the dirt, and maybe make a sacrifice in terms of direction and effort. Inflation is like that. Some of us fail to see the brink of the precipice ahead. We are lulled by increases, and discount the dire results.

$10,000 Trifle
When I left China in 1936, a comfortable annual income was purchased there for 10,000 Chinese dollars. Today you'd be lucky to buy a laudanum pipe for $10,000. Matter of fact, a Chinese friend of mine recently enclosed a $10,000 note to me in a letter. The note was not a gift, nor a repayment on a loan, nor a sum for investment. It was merely a souvenir, virtual worthless. "Printing press" money is sometimes resorted to by governments, in an attempt to keep ahead of problems created by inflation. In Germany during that period of financial havoc following World War I, the values of money in circulation were changing daily. Banks had to tally everything at the close of each business day. Nobody was sure what they would be worth the next day.

Pull Together!
Oh, this can't happen to America! American! He utters that statement is confused chances are. Actually it has already happened. The one thing that the spiral of inflation has cut down buying power, cheapened our money. Today, $2 is worth what $2 was worth only a few years ago. This means that if you have insurance or a bank account, the value of your money has reduced to its one-half. Loss to savings in this way is very real.

In most lines of industry and in agriculture, our vast production is doing a fine job of meeting unprecedented demands. We must continue to produce, cut costs, and save more. We must do the right thing about these problems. If each of us will act individually and collectively as we know best, the inflation bogey is no longer a threat. The answer is not always to be found in wage boosts. Rather, we should be good citizens if we pull together to bring the cost of living down.

THE GARDEN

By JOHN S. Gardner, Kentucky
College of Agriculture and Home Economics

With seed catalogs coming along and the local merchants' seedstock filling, seed needs should be taken care of, to escape the last-minute rush that might find first-choices gone, or that might delay delivery at planting time.

In general, old standby varieties will be used again. This is quite understandable and eminently correct, as there are some to Kentucky's climate that discourages using too many of the "novelties" that all seed catalogs always list. However, there are a few new-comers that have proved their worth in this state, as are real contributions to be adopted without risk. Here are a few.

LOGAN bush bean, introduced several years ago by the South-eastern Experiment Station, is adapted especially to growing in hot dry weather, and so many of the old varieties bear sparingly or not at all. Tested against old favorites, early and late, wet and dry, LOGAN has consistently led the rest.

US REFUGEE No. 5 bush bean, developed in the same station as Logan, has proved its superiority, harvested in late August and dry, but September. Unlike Logan, it should be planted only in June 15; it is definitely a late bean. It is a selection from "1000-1," an old bean of merit, but stringy and inclined to be coarse though it let fill too much. US No. 5 is stringless, of better quality and color than the original; an excellent bean for canning.

FORDHOOK 242 (the number is important) bush lima replaces ordinary Fordhook, the "potato lima" that in hot and dry weather stops podding, but continues to grow, early and late, wet and dry, against that kind of weather, and outbears the original 6 to 1, even 9 to 1, and has all the superb qualities of the one it replaces. Fordhook. By the way, it, too, freezes excellently.

Phosphorus helps in the obtainable of seedmen and seed jobbers, and local merchants can procure them, if reminded.

We often are asked why tomatoes grow to vine and fruit sparsely and late, why lima beans shed their blooms and set few pods, and why root crops do most of their growing above ground. The answer is that stable manure must have been used on the garden. Manure, as compared with phosphorus, contains too much nitrogen, the plant food that induces plant and leaf growth. Phosphorus helps in root development, it induces blooming and fruit setting and hastens the maturing of fruit or root crops. In general, it is the most needed and the most inexpensive vegetable-plant food.

To make manure a balanced fertilizer, superphosphate should be used with it at the rate of 30 pounds of the 20 percent grade to the ton. It may be mixed before the manure is spread or broadcast afterwards, and both plowed under together. If not as much as 10 tons of manure is used per acre, the amount of superphosphate still is 500 pounds, or one pound to 80 square feet of garden.

So fertilized, satisfactory fruit, seed and root vegetables should result; cabbage, lettuce, onions and greens should receive additional nitrogen, such as a side-dressing with poultry manure, a bushel for 200 to 300 feet of row. Where stable manure is not to be obtained, commercial fertilizer "high in the middle," as 3-9-4, or 12-8 or 5-10-5, is to be used. The figures on the sack stand for percentages of nitrogen, phosphorus and potash, in that order. The amount is 500 pounds per acre, or one pound to 40 square feet. It may be spread and plowed under, or on rock-broken land, disked in. Used in the row and

Thousands Are Trained
In 4-H Club Work

President Truman's proclamation naming March 1-7 as National 4-H Club Week brought a statement from the College of Agriculture and Home Economics at Lexington that around 400,000 Kentuckians have benefited by 4-H club training in the past 33 years.

There now are 73,000 boys and girls in the state in 4-H clubs.

They are learning how to do better jobs of farming and home-making.

This training includes raising cattle, sheep, hogs and chickens, dairying, growing tobacco and other crops, saving the soil and making it more productive. Girls are taught how to be good housekeepers and homemakers. This includes food preparation, canning, baking, sewing, home furnishings, care of the home, health and grooming.

came you will slowly but surely be brought under control. Thoughts cause destructive emotion. Better thoughts can also control emotion.

Take anger for example. When emotionally upset, your voice becomes strident and your fist clenches. Master this emotion by setting against it a contrary emotion expressed by the words, "In quietness and confidence shall be MY strength." This is a practical method and works if practiced. But you must practice it to get results.

When the emotion of anger seizes you and your fist begins to clench, resist by practicing a definite formula. Don't let your fist clench. Instead, rest your hand on a table or on your knee. Keep your fingers stretched out. Put your hand down and hold it there. Keep it relaxed. The madder you get, the more deliberately and quietly you must speak. Slow down your speech. Deliberately speak slowly. Force your voice down to a low, mild tone. In an office a discussion was going on which became heated. Indeed the atmosphere was getting hotter by the minute. Suddenly one of the men arose and went over and stretched out on a couch.

"What's the matter? Are you tired?" I asked.

Everybody stopped talking and I shall never forget his answer. "No he said slowly, 'I'm not tired. I'm just getting mad and I've discovered that it's difficult to get mad lying down.'"

Of course we all laughed and ter emotions.

The tension was broken but it was a wise remark. His efficiency was related to his ability to master his emotions.
